What These Products Are

Yohimbe and yohimbine-based stimulants appear in fat burners, pre-workouts, sexual enhancers, and gummies sold in gas stations, vape shops, and online supplement retailers. Many formulas contain alpha-yohimbine or rauwolscline, which can cause rapid heart rate, panic, agitation, and spikes in blood pressure. These products are not FDA-approved.

Why SROs Should Be Alert

- Sold in gas stations, vape shops, and supplement stores
- Marketed as fat burners, energy boosters, or sexual enhancers
- Students may bring bottles, packets, or gummies in backpacks
- Yohimbine can cause anxiety, tremors, agitation, or hypertensive episodes
- Products often appear in gym bags or lockers
- Labels may hide alpha-yohimbine or stimulant analogs

Common Yohimbe-Based Products

Alpha-Yohimbine/Rauwolscline Products: Rauwolscline, Yohimbine Gummies, Yohimbe extract capsules

Gym and Pre-Workout Products: Psychotic, Herolean, Venom, Smash AMP, Gorilla Mode Nitric (variants)

Gas Station Enhancers: Rhino 7, similar sexual-enhancement blister packs

SRO Response Guidance

- Confiscate and notify administration
- Photograph packaging and document statements
- Send students to the nurse if showing elevated heart rate, dizziness, agitation, or panic
- Secure packaging in evidence envelope if impairment suspected
- Notify law enforcement liaison if distribution is suspected
